

Czech Web Resources

Texans One and All: <http://www.texancultures.utsa.edu/publications/texansoneandall/texans.htm>
Real audio accompanies this text with photographs which tell the story of Czechs in Texas. Back up one step in the URL for similar information about other ethnic groups in Texas. Based on the book Texans One and All by John L. Davis.

The Texas Czech Storyteller: <http://www.czechheritage.org/>

A long, scholarly list of topics ranging from the history of the Czechoslovakian lands in Europe and the factors that led to immigration; Czech settlement in Texas; stories of daily life in Texas Czech communities; Czech language, food, and folk dress; the sokol; genealogy; the new (2002) Czech Exhibit at the Institute of Texan Cultures (scroll about halfway down), and more!

<http://www.cia.gov/cia/publications/factbook/geos/ez.html> This site gives statistics about each nation. Good for use in comparing items in student family stories (Create an “Institute of Student Cultures” Exhibit Activity).

http://www.yourchildlearns.com/europe\_map.htm Political map of Europe with no countries named. As the cursor rolls over each nation, the cursor reveals its name and capital city.

Immigration and Citizenship

Becoming a Citizen: <http://www.texancultures.utsa.edu/newtexans/literacy.htm>

Can you answer the questions found on the citizenship literacy test? Teachers, use these questions for a “Bee” or “College Bowl” type of game in your class. It is interesting to discover how much we don't know that new citizens must know.

Map of the European Union: Nations which use the euro

http://europa.eu.int/comm/economy\_finance/euro/participating\_member\_states\_map\_en.htm

How much is a euro?

<http://www.xe.com/ucc/> Use this Web site to instantly calculate euros to dollars to Czech koruny—and back again.

Make kolace, or “kolaches,” the traditional Czech fruit-filled rolls, using these winning recipes from Caldwell, the kolache capital of Texas: <http://www.rtis.com/reg/caldwell/ent/recipes.htm>

A Czech Newspaper

<http://www.ceskenoviny.cz/> How's the weather in Prague today, and which newsmakers are on the front page of the Ceské Noviny (Czech News), a daily newspaper from the CTK, the Czech Press Agency. On the day we checked, Grammy awards had just been announced, and the winner was...? Norah Jonesova! (The ending -ova on Czech names indicates that the person is a woman.)
